An interdisciplinary seminar on a compelling issue in recent gerontological studies was held in the college on 9th October 2018. Its main objective was to foreground the pressing necessity to engage in studies related to intergenerational bonding. The panel included distinguished guests from CMIG, faculty members from the departments of English and Sociology. Students from the Department of English recited poems that addressed old age and its concerns. Dr.Sumita Chowdhury, Head of the Department of English supervised the programme, interacting with members of CMIG especially with Debopriya Das, alumnus (2008-11), Department of English. Dr.Chandrima Karmakar (Department of English) introduced the topic with a brief lecture on the issue. The speakers were:

Sri Ipshito Chakraborty (CMIG): Technology in inter-generational Bonding.

Ms. Debapriya Das (CMIG): Functions of Productive Ageing.

Prof. Priyanka Roy: Contribution of Grandparents Towards Childcare: An Indian Perspective.

Prof. Sipra Das Bagchi : An Interactive Session on- Raising Self-confidence and Self-esteem of the Aged Persons through Group-Activities at the Family Level.

Students (Department of English) presented poem recitals in between sessions. Prof. Abu Farah Haque coordinated the sessions and extended the vote of thanks.
